July 23, 2010 6:42 PM

Commonwealth Care extends access to high-quality, affordable health care to Massachusetts residents 19 years or older who earn at or below 300 percent of the federal poverty level (which is up to approximately $32,496 a year for an individual or $66,156 a year for a family of four) and who do not have access to subsidized health insurance, including employee-sponsored health insurance. The Commonwealth Health Insurance Connector Authority determines Commonwealth Care eligibility. Massachusetts residents eligible for Commonwealth Care can enroll in a health plan that administers Commonwealth Care anytime.

"Network Health is very pleased to provide Wareham-area residents increased access to high-quality health care," said Christina Severin, president of Network Health. "This expansion allows Network Health to continue fulfilling its core mission of improving the health and well-being of our members and their diverse communities."

Network Health is one of five local health plans with a Commonwealth Care product. With more than 18,000 doctors in its growing provider network, Network Health gives its members more doctors than any other health plan.

Since 1997, Network Health has provided access to high-quality health care to Massachusetts residents with low and moderate incomes. Based in Medford, Network Health is a comprehensive health plan serving members through its Network Health Together, (MassHealth) and Network Health Forward, (Commonwealth Care) plans.
